Why work with a Clearance Diver?

RAN Clearance Divers are a unique bunch. They come in all shapes and sizes, from all parts of the country with unique origins, stories and motivations. Whether they're from Longreach, Ballarat, Adelaide or Parramatta, they are united together through a special bond forged in the hardship they all share through the rigours of becoming and being a Clearance Diver. Once they leave RAN, they incorporate this journey into their civilian careers which have taken them in many unique and diverse directions.

They are resourceful, innovative, clever and hard-working. The characteristics they develop throughout the journey of becoming a Clearance Diver stay with them for life. The quality of a Clearance Diver is difficult to define and hard to measure.

Skills acquired throughout years of service with RAN in Clearance Diving are far and wide and are now being applied in a number of companies owned and operated by transitioned Clearance Divers. Their ability to measure and assess risk in order to achieve positive outcomes in high-stake endeavours is routine. This is one of the reasons why many Clearance Divers become entrepreneurs and establish their own companies. Clearance Divers are resourceful and required to rise to the challenge. Pragmatic, outcome orientated and incredibly focused, Clearance Divers get the job done. They are highly disciplined, yet full of initiative.

As individuals, their relentless pursuit of excellence extends beyond the uniform with a number of former Clearance Diver's running successful businesses. Brewing award winning wine, designing and building the next generation tactical watercraft, leading the runway with high-end designer clothing, developing cutting-edge software solutions and providing comprehensive investment solutions are just some of the exciting things our former Clearance Divers have been up to post their Naval careers.

Please use this directory to explore new opportunities for suppliers of products and services. Whether employing, working for, or working with a Clearance Diver, rest assured, you'll be met with a highly disciplined, motivated individual who has plenty of unique experience and many great stories to tell.

When you're a navy diver turned military contractor turned anti-poaching ranger, the only thing left to do is to switch on the camera and start filming.

So that's where I started, creating content for the International Anti-Poaching Foundation in Zimbabwe while running their operations on the ground. It's probably not my finest work, but it did begin to make me aware that I'd rather be telling the stories than featuring in them.

As I interacted more and more with the media, I quickly realised that accurate documentary storytelling was in short supply. This has prompted me to focus on stories that are close to me. Following the adage, 'write what you know', my on-going series 'Transitions' tells the stories of military veterans who have faced the challenge of adjusting to civilian life.

In my own transition, I feel lucky to have traded up action in Afghanistan and Southern Africa for filmmaking and storytelling in this beautiful region of South West Australia.

Contract Diving Services CDS

Commenced Contract Diving Services (CDS) in 1982 with Colin (Spud) Murphy as an onshore diving company which we grew to include offshore diving projects. During this phase of CDS we employed numerous Clearance Divers who transited from the RAN to civilian work. We sold the diving business in 1994 and Colin carried on in the diving industry after starting another diving company which employed the next generation of ex CD's.

Contract Diving Services Pty Ltd has now morphed into a company that assists in regulatory documentation to the offshore diving industry and auditing services for most of the offshore oil companies in Australia. We are still employing ex Clearance Divers to assist in this work.
